

Green Buildings from the Bottom Up

With nearly 80% of the city's carbon emissions coming from buildings, building service workers hold the key to reducing dangerous emissions, conserving energy and lowering operating costs.

That's why the 32BJ Training Fund has developed the first ever Green Buildings Program to train superintendents and resident managers in the latest, state-of-the-art, best practices in energy efficiency.

Green Buildings provides building workers with what they need to know to help turn the Big Apple into the Big Green Apple.
