

WORKING TO KEEP THE AMERICAN DREAM ALIVE

Pedro Martinez is proud his daughter attends Nassau Community College, where he works as a cleaner. But it's difficult for him to help her pay for tuition and books when he's already struggling to cover his family's monthly bills.

That's why he and 1,000 office cleaners across Long Island are fighting for a raise that will help them get ahead of the rising cost of living.

With commercial rents on Long Island at an all time high, the real estate industry can afford to give Pedro and his co-workers a raise that will help them live the American Dream.

Long Island office cleaners are employed by cleaning contractors that serve the Long Island real estate industry.
