

Stand Up for the American Dream

Each night, hard-working men and women clean the buildings where New Jersey's laws are made, mopping floors and scrubbing bathrooms long after everyone else has gone home – but they earn as little as $6.15 an hour, without health care, sick days or vacation.

Today, New Jersey legislators are poised to pass a bill that will raise wages and benefits for these workers, enabling them to live with dignity and sustain their families.

Local 32BJ, representing 6,000 property service workers across New Jersey, urges the Senate and Assembly to pass the New Jersey Building Services Prevailing Wage Act.
